Lippert Components promotes Greg Moeller to Director of Sales for building products

Elkhart, Ind. — Lippert Components, Inc. \(LCI®\) announces that Greg Moeller has been named Director of Sales for Building Products to help the Company grow its manufactured housing business and expand into adjacent residential housing and commercial building markets. LCI already supplies a broad array of building products for manufactured homes, including vinyl and aluminum windows, steel, aluminum, fiberglass and vinyl doors, and thermoformed kitchen and bath products.

“Greg is a natural leader and has had an eye for product development and customer service since he started with us as a management trainee in 2013,” said Andy Pocock, LCI’s Vice President of Sales for Specialty Markets. “We’re ready to expand our building product offering and grow into the stick-built and multi-family home market. We believe Greg’s experience and focus will help us build the business and serve customers well.”

Moeller has more than 10 years of leadership experience and has been focusing on growing LCI’s manufactured housing and residential building products business for more than 2 years. In his new role as Director of Sales for Building Products, Moeller will lead the Building Products sales team, coordinate with manufacturing facilities and work closely with customers and potential customers to develop product solutions to meet their unique needs.

Moeller said he’s especially excited to focus more attention on growing LCI’s business in traditional residential stick-built housing and commercial building markets. “Lippert Components has long been a leading supplier to the manufactured housing industry,” said Moeller. “We want to continue cultivating those relationships and pursue exciting opportunities in adjacent markets.”
